STRATEGIC PLAN SUMMARY
In March 2012, the City of Clayton embarked on a strategic planning process, known as C The Future. This process was initiated by the Mayor and Board of Aldermen, but was designed to be a community-based strategic plan.

A strategic planning process involves preparing an environmental scan that identifies the factors affecting the community, articulating a clear vision, establishing key performance areas, identifying priority strategies and initiatives, and creating action plans. The Clayton Strategic Plan is intended to represent the community’s vision for Clayton, and outlines what the community hopes to accomplish during the next three to five years.

The process of developing a strategic plan explores three specific questions:

1. What do we know to be true? Where are we?
2. What do we hope will be true in the future? Where do we want to go?
3. What must go well in order to make it so? How do we get there?

In this way, Clayton’s Strategic Plan is a road map to move the community towards its intended vision.

Methodology and Process

Clayton retained the services of The Novak Consulting Group to design and facilitate a strategic planning process. To guide and direct the process, a Steering Committee was formed, chaired by Mayor Linda Goldstein and comprised of community representatives.

C The Future utilized a facilitation technique known as a Search Conference. This process is designed to “bring people together to achieve breakthrough innovation, empowerment, shared vision and collaborative action” (from Discovering Common Ground, Marvin R. Weisbord, 1992).

The Steering Committee invited members of the Clayton community to participate in the Search Conference, which included two key events: a Vision Conference and an Action Conference. Involvement in these events required a significant commitment of time from participants, and the process was enriched by the broad cross-section of the community that engaged.

The Steering Committee decided on an application and invitation process to solicit participation by stakeholders. Ultimately, they selected a group of approximately 50 stakeholders to participate. In addition to this group of stakeholders, input was sought from the entire Clayton community on the elements of the strategic plan.

The process resulted in the final elements of the Strategic Plan: vision, key performance areas, strategic initiatives, and action plans.
